

April issue 2013: Global interiors special

Wallpaper's international design team has scoured the planet to bring you an April issue bursting with the most inspiring and innovative people and products from this year's global hotspots – Denmark, The Netherlands, South Africa, Australia and Canada. We also bring you the 52-page Germany survey showcasing Europe's most supercharged, design-driven, growth engine.

The issue also profiles a city on the cusp of a cultural revolution. Once France's edgy outsider, Marseille is transforming into a major cultural hub thanks to an influx of new art and architecture. Leading the way is Marseille-born designer Ora-İto who has transformed the rooftop gym of Le Corbusier's Cité Radieuse into a contemporary art space, MAMO.

Tony Chambers, Editor-in-Chief, Wallpaper* says, 'MAMO is opening with a homage to Cité Radieuse by Wallpaper* favourite Xavier Veilhan, so it made perfect sense to ask him to design this month's limited-edition subscriber cover'.

This month our iPad edition brings you some exclusive extras. We begin the journey with an interactive floor plan of a Toyko residence where owners live above a luxury car showroom. And from the R&D nerve centre of Germany's equivalent of NASA, we have a film of humanoid robot called Justin. A surprisingly graceful mover, he's all multi-directional arms at the moment, but plans are afoot to transform the co-worker of the future into a biped.

The April issue of Wallpaper* is out now in stores in 93 countries and available on the iPad.
