

A high five for Handmade Wallpaper* Handmade with Leclletico

Wallpaper* Handmade returns to the Leclletico gallery for its fifth, freshly minted celebration of craft, creativity and collaboration at Salone del Mobile. The success of last year's spectacular Handmade presentation at Leclletico has turned San Gregorio Docet into Milan's newest go-to design district and this year's bar-raising, must-see event has been produced in collaboration with the gallery's founder Claudio Loria. Once again an international cast of star designers, craftsmen and makers has been assembled to produce one-off wonders, so prepare to be amazed, beguiled and charmed as:

Vincenzo De Cotiis turns the table on a wondrous set of Jaguar wheels

Sony celebrates creativity with sub-atomically sharp screens

The Ace Hotel's Lovage serves up life-enhancing elixirs

Bally lets loose with hell-for-leather skis

Todd Bracher pops a corking jacket

We unveil the world's best-designed (and tastiest) new neighbourhood

And Michael Anastassiades creates beautifully dressed windows with Brioni for Handmade's first off-site installation.

About Leclletico

Milan-based collector, designer, researcher and creative Claudio Loria is the brains behind Leclletico. Part ideas laboratory, part archive, Loria works tirelessly to recover furniture, spaces and settings from the 1900s and bring them back to life. His unyielding ethical philosophy and bold approach to design was brought to light in 2013 when Wallpaper* relocated Handmade to his beautiful gallery. The response to the exhibition's new home was overwhelming and so for its fifth edition of Handmade, Wallpaper* is using Loria's majestic vision to co-curate the show.
